RHETORIC [Easy: Success] – You feel something... rising through you – a familiar feeling. AN OPINION taking form...

1. - "We should ground the workers into fine paste and feed them to the pigs."
2. - "We should ground the owners into fine paste and feed them to the pigs."
3. - "With this little foreknowledge I am unsure which side to grind into pigsfeed. The decision must ferment in me. Also – nationalism."
4. - "I don't think grounding one or the other side into pigsfeed will do anyone favours. I am really, really smart."
5. - "I've spent the last 20 seconds deciding on which side to ground into pigfeed – why?"

Security Guard: “Hang on - you’re not supposed to be in here. Now, are you going to leave nice and quiet, or am I going to have to indulge in the perks of the profession?”

1. [Aggressive Self-Loather] “Gosh, could you beat me up while I’m quiet? I probably deserve it.”
2. [Simultaneous Inferiority/Superiority Complex] “The former - I’m nicer and quieter than you. But not that nice and quiet. Definitely nicer and quieter than you, though.”
3. [Struggles With Emotion] “...”
4. [Impatient] “Either one, as long as we get to it. I don’t have all fucking day.”
5. [Unfaltering Contrarian] “I’m going to do neither. That’s my right. It’s a free country. So there.”
6. [Pent-Up Aggression] (Remember “Paul Blart - Mall Cop 2” and launch into a violent rage.)
7. [Self-Pressured Hero] “There are people back here! People that need rescuing! I think!”
8. [Castle Doctrinist] “I’d support this, if we were on your property.”
9. [Inquisitive to a Fault] “Yeah but just how hard could you possibly beat me up? Do you bench a lot?”
10. “Yeah, I probably shouldn’t be back here anyway. Sorry.”
